Dover, England

Sail the South Coast

Arrival 07.00
Departure 18.00

Welcome to

Dover, England

Dover, known for its famous White Cliffs, is the go-to spot in the UK for ferry trips to France. The bustling port town's got more than just travel credentials to its name, though. Perched on top of the milk-coloured cliff faces is Dover Castle – this medieval fortification has been used to fend off enemy ships through the ages, from the Iron Age to Napoleonic times, and even during the Second World War. It's the main thing to see here, and panoramic views of ships coming and going down below are a must-see.

Changes . .

We are sure you have seen some changes in the way we do things, to comply with the regulations to allow us to sail and have you onboard, you will see no counter service at the bars, only table service and satellite stations, we have as many bar staff as ever, and they will look after you wherever you are. There are room capacities we have to monitor and with popular events we recommend arriving early as they can fill up fast, there are plenty of seats for all onboard, so if a venue is full, we can advise you where you can go. Dining seating has also been reduced, so we may have to give you a buzzer, while you wait a little for a table to become free, but . . . we are only around 915 guests, so all should be smooth sailing.

CRUISE NOTICEBOARD

Temperature Checks

As part of our plans to keep everyone safe and well, we need to take everyone's temperature every day. To make this as quick and easy as possible, we've invested in thermal screening technology. You'll find these screening stations on Deck 6, mid-ship – that's the landing with the red carpet, and at Deck 6, forward – the landing with the blue carpet. You'll need visit to take your temperature daily, before 4pm. If your temperature flags as over 38° the scanner will direct you to return to your cabin and wait for us to contact you. These temperature checks are a legal requirement so if you haven't completed your screening by 4pm, we may have to deactivate your card until it is done.

SHORE EXCURSIONS

Kent Coast & Canterbury Country Tour

You'll get to know Kent's postcard-pretty coastline on this tour. Deal – a prime example of an English seaside town – is first on the agenda. Then, it's time to continue on to Canterbury, where you'll take a tour of the handsome city centre. You'll see how Canterbury's historical influences including surviving Saxon and Roman features blend with the city's modern side. Then, finish up with the chance to snap some pictures of the famous cathedral.

White Cliffs' Of Dover

Want a whistle-stop tour of Dover's most iconic landmark? This tour's on the case. First of all, you'll take a drive to Samphire Hoe. This beauty spot's situated right at the foot of the famous chalk-faced cliffs, so you can take some up-close pictures. Then, you'll head up to the top of the cliffs for another photo stop. This time, it's the views out over the English Channel that are in the frame. Keep your eyes peeled for Dover's famed castle, too.

Please check information on your tickets before disembarking the ship for your excursion, don't forget your face-mask along with your cruise card.

MEET THE TEAM

Captain Chris was born and originally grew up in Newcastle Upon Tyne. He moved down to Bingham in Nottinghamshire when he was five years old. Chris, eager to get to sea joined the Merchant Navy having been inspired by his dad, who was Chief Engineer on Thomson Celebration before retiring. He started his career in the Royal Navy in the early 90's before moving to Cunard and QE2 in 1996. Having had several promotions, he left Cunard in 2004 as a First Officer. His career then took him to private yachts, working for the Crown Prince of Saudi Arabia and a certain Chelsea owner to name a couple. He decided to come back to cruise ships in 2016. Chris now lives in Valbonne in the South of France, and regularly makes extended trips to Harrogate and Nottingham. He'd like to wish all guests onboard Marella Explorer and a great cruise.
